PREFACE

Generally, directories like the Class "D" Citizens Band Radio Call Book are planned as annual publications. This was the plan in 1959 when International Crystal Mfg. Co., Inc. undertook the task of printing the first edition of the Class "D" Call Book. However, since publication of the 1960 edition, which included all listings through January 1, 1960, the number of licenses issued by the F.C.C. has been so great as to make a year's wait for the next edition impractical. This supplement to the 1960 edition was decided upon by International. The statistics show why.

In this supplement there are approximately 40,000 calls listed and they represent only the licenses issued by the F.C.C. between January 1, 1960 and July 1, 1960. The number of Citizen Band stations licensed during those six months is actually twice the total issued from the creation of the Citizen Band in 1958 to January 1, 1960.

Plainly, this great increase in Citizen Band stations underscores the importance of keeping the Call Book a reliable reference to everyone on the air. The Call Book helps Citizen Band licensees conduct their operations with the speed and efficiency prescribed by the F.C.C. so that maximum convenience and usefulness may be realized by all Citizen Banders. Toward the great benefits available on the Citizen Band, International Crystal Mfg. Co., Inc. directs this addition to the 1960 Call Book.

International once again must gratefully acknowledge the cooperation of the F.C.C. whose help makes this compilation possible. Also helpful are the many comments, suggestions and support of subscribers in encouraging International in its efforts to make the Call Book a standard part of citizen Band radio.

A TRANSISTORIZED PORTABLE CITIZEN BAND FREQUENCY METER

TO MEASURE YOUR FREQUENCY

The F.C.C. regulations state that the transmitter used in citizen equipment must maintain a tolerance of ± .005% from 0° F to 125° F. To meet this the equipment should be well within .0025% when measured at room temperatures. At 27 mc this is roughly within 650 cycles.

To determine this frequency error the output of the transmitter should be compared with a secondary frequency standard having an accuracy of at least .0025%. An accuracy of .001% is far better and allows for some temperature error.

Your measurement is no better than the standard against which it is measured, and your standard is no better than the primary standard against which it is calibrated. The transmitter frequency of your equipment should be checked at least every six months and whenever a new crystal is installed.

The INTERNATIONAL C-12B FREQUENCY METER meets all F.C.C. requirements for the check and alignment of Class "D" transmitters. Easy to operate and completely portable, it allows versatility never before available in a reasonably priced secondary frequency standard. Check the features; check the specifications. International's years of outstanding frequency-measurement engineering are "built in" this instrument!

The International C-12B portable secondary frequency standard is a self contained unit designed for use in servicing radio transmitters and receivers used in the 27 MC range Citizen service. The meter is capable of holding twenty-four crystals and comes with twenty-three crystals installed. The twenty-three crystals cover channels 1 thru 23 (26.965 MC to 27.255 MC). The frequency accuracy of the C-12B is ± .0015% 32° F to 125° F. Additional built-in features are the AM percentage modulation checker and power output meter. The PK (pick-off) box, dummy load, and connecting cable supplied make it an ideal and simple instrument to use.

CITIZENS RADIO SERVICE LICENSE SERIAL NUMBERS

In the Citizens Radio Service each authorization is assigned a serial number which consists of one or two digits, a letter, and four additional digits. For example, a possible serial number may be written thus: 14D3896. The first two digits designate the number of the Citizens Radio Service call area in which the licensee has his address (there are 24 of these areas). The letter is an arbitrary symbol at present, but will indicate the year of issuance beginning next year, as explained below. The last four digits are a straight serial number.

Heretofore, since these license serial numbers are required by the Rules to be used as call signs, the Commission has endeavored to continue the same serial number from license to license for the same licensee. The sudden growth of the Citizens Radio Service, however, has forced the Commission to utilize the simplest practicable administrative procedures in order to handle the workload. Such procedures require that every license issued be treated as a completely new one and that a new serial number be assigned in every case. This means that "modified" and "renewed" licenses will carry a new serial number. The former serial number is thereby superseded and may no longer be used to identify the station.

Beginning January 1, 1961 a new letter will be used for the serial numbers issued during each calendar year. A series of seven letters (the letters Q through W) will be used and repeated each seven years. This will further simplify the administration of the service and will add significance to the serial numbers when heard on the air.

Federal Communications Commission

Washington 25, D. C.

In the Matter of Amendment of Part 19, Citizens Radio Service, to redefine the permissible communications in that service, and to specify a time limitation thereon.	DOCKET NO. 12987

REPORT AND ORDER

By the Commission: Chairman Doerfer absent.

1. On July 22, 1959, the Commission adopted a Notice of Proposed Rule Making in the above-entitled matter which was published in the Federal Register on July 29, 1959 (24 FR 6059). The purpose of the proposed amendment was to redefine the permissible communications in the Citizens Radio Service, primarily to more clearly prohibit certain types of communications properly conducted in the Amateur Radio Service.

2. Ample opportunity was afforded interested persons to submit comments in support of or in opposition to the proposed rule amendments and the time for filing such comments has now expired. Numerous comments, ranging from detailed documents to single-page letters, and one reply comment were filed in the proceeding. Due to the large number, it is not feasible to list here all such comments nor to discuss the various positions of all interested parties. No effort was made to tabulate the number of parties either supporting or opposing the proposed changes. In this connection it should be noted that one comment which contains logical and sound reasons is more helpful to the Commission and is entitled to more weight than many statements merely containing the support or opposition of the party without stating the reasons. Nevertheless, all comments have been carefully read, considered, and given appropriate weight by the Commission in the disposition of the issues involved in the proceeding.

3. Some comments contained suggestions or proposals which go beyond the scope of this proceeding. Included among these were recommendations that Class D stations be assigned specific frequencies as is the case in Class A stations and that specific channels be allocated for certain exclusive uses or for certain categories of users such as emergencies, boats, and gas stations. Parties who wish further consideration of any such suggestion or proposal should file formal petitions for rule making in accordance with the provisions of Section 1.202 of the Commission's Rules.

4. The comments with respect to the proposed restrictions on amateur-type communications may be placed in three general categories; those supporting the Commission's proposal, those opposed, and those suggesting a compromise by some sort of sharing on either a frequency, time, or geographical basis. The reasons most frequently given in opposition to the proposed limitations may be summarized as follows: (a) amateur-type activities such as "rag-chewing" and "hamming" promote fellowship and understanding between persons in different parts of the country, (b) such activities further the interest of radio development and provide a communications network in cases of emergency, (c) national publications and advertisements have misled the public, without rebuttal from the Commission, into purchasing equipment for which they would not have use, and (d) in any event the use of citizens radio stations for amateur-type communications far eclipses the amount of use for purposes which the Commission intended the service; and should be permitted to continue. The Commission believes that these comments would be more compelling if there were no Amateur Radio Service, and that they indicate a lack of understanding of the Commission's purpose in establishing the Citizens Radio Service.

5. The Commission, over the years, had established numerous separate radio services to provide for the varied communications requirements of different segments of both industry and local government. Although the rules do not specifically define the types of messages to be transmitted, in each case the licensees are restricted to those communications considered essential to the conduct of that portion of their activities which forms the basis of their eligibility in the particular service. In line with this policy, the Citizens Radio Service was created to provide a means of transmitting the substantive and useful messages related to either the business activities or personal convenience of private citizens who may not be eligible in any other radio service except the Amateur Radio Service. Since the provisions of the rules governing the other radio services had not been misinterpreted, it was believed unnecessary to define in great detail the type of use which might be made of citizens radio stations. While it was contemplated that there would be unlimited possibilities for use, there was no intention to create a service paralleling the Amateur Radio Service nor was it intended that citizens radio stations be used as a hobby in itself, for technical radio experiments or for general "contacts" of a random nature. Provision for this type of operation had already been made in the Amateur Radio Service which was designed to develop an interest in radio technique and is available to all persons who might be interested in that kind of operation. The fact that there are over 190,000 licensed amateur radio operators in the United States indicates that the knowledge and skills necessary to pass the examination and obtain a license in the Amateur Radio Service are not too difficult to acquire.

6. Random communications, particularly in the 27 Mc frequency band, are capable of creating very serious interference. The present rules governing the Amateur Radio Service insure that no person not technically qualified will engage in random communications and other amateur-type activities. The Commission believes that the requirements of that service are the minimum for persons who engage in amateur-type activities, that such activities should be confined to frequencies reserved for that purpose, and should not be permitted to defeat and interfere with the Commission's purpose in establishing the Citizens Radio Service.

7. The Commission agrees that citizens radio stations may provide a public service as a communications network in cases of emergency or in connection with civil defense activities. However, the Commission is of the opinion that such emergency communications networks should be organized by and under the direction of the duly authorized local civil defense or other governmental authorities; otherwise a group of persons with good intentions might cause interference to the communications of the civil defense agencies conducted under the provisions of Section 19.93.

8. The Commission regrets that anyone has been misled by magazine articles or the advertisements of certain equipment manufacturers into purchasing radio equipment solely to conduct amateur-type communications in the Citizens Radio Service. When such material has been submitted to the Commission prior to publication, it has been checked for conformity with the Commission's rules. Thus, later magazine articles, whose authors took the time to first check with the Commission, attempted to correct the false impression that amateur-type communications were permitted in the Citizens Radio Service.

9. The Commission is unable to concur with the statement that the use of the Citizens Radio Service for amateur-type communications eclipses the use for purposes for which the service was intended. Even if this were true, it would not be a good or valid reason for turning the Citizens Radio Service into an examination-free amateur band. However, information obtained from applicants' answers to the question on the application form concerning proposed use of the stations, letters written by licensees, statements of equipment manufacturers, and the comments filed in this proceeding convinces the Commission that by far the majority of the licensees use their stations in a manner which is within the intended scope of the service. The fact that monitoring of the Class D frequencies reveals a substantial amount of amateur-type communications merely points up the fact that few persons engaging in lengthy amateur-type exchanges can create interference to the extent of destroying the value of the service for those individuals who have a definite but perhaps only an occasional need for communications in their business activities or for personal convenience.

10. Many of the factors discussed above are also applicable reasons against permitting amateur-type communications on some sort of sharing basis. In addition, the erratic skip conditions prevalent in the 27 Mc band and the time differential between the east and west coasts make any geographical or time-sharing arrangements impracticable. Nor with applications for licenses in the Citizens Radio Service presently being received at a rate of more than 8,000 per month can the Commission find that the public interest would be served by diverting any needed frequencies to this purpose. Accordingly, the Commission is adopting amendments to Part 19 which will clearly prohibit amateur-type activities in this service, although not in the exact form as proposed. Since Class A and Class B stations operate on frequencies in the 460-470 Mc band which is not subject to the "skip conditions" characteristic of the 27 Mc band, they have not been used for amateur-type communications to any extent. Therefore, some of the more stringent limitations have been made applicable only to Class D stations. In view of the past misunderstanding the Commission feels that some discussion of certain provisions of the rules as amended is appropriate.

11. Paragraph (a) of Section 19.61 as amended merely reflects the Commission's intention that the Citizens Radio Service (except for Class C stations) is contemplated basically as a service for intercommunication between units of a single station. This does not mean that authorization for single units will not be granted, but requires that intercommunication between units of different stations be restricted to useful and substantive messages related to the business or personal activities of the individuals concerned. Examples of permissible intercommunication between stations include communications between boats, hunting and fishing parties, coordinated business activities, and those made pursuant to Section 19.61(c) as amended herein. Many of the comments filed in this proceeding pointed out the utility of the Citizens Radio Service to persons traveling in parts of the country unknown to them and in need of information or service. In this connection the Commission has been informally advised that in certain localities enterprising service stations, motels, etc. have advertised the call signs of their citizens radio stations just for such purposes. The Commission believes that under such circumstances this is a valid and permissible intercommunication between units of different stations. The principal restraint on citizens radio stations contained in paragraph (a) is, of course, the prohibition against communicating with stations licensed or operated under other parts of the Commission's Rules or with foreign or government stations, except for communications relating to civil defense activities. This restriction extends to unlicensed equipment operating under Part 15 of the Commission's rules on frequencies which are also available to Class D stations.

12. Paragraph (b) [formerly paragraph (d)] of Section 19.61 remains substantially as before. One change is an additional restriction to clearly prohibit the transmission of music or any material intended solely for amusement or entertainment purposes.

This change appears necessary in view of reports received by the Commission that some licensees have been using their stations for the transmission to the general public of recorded music, news and weather bulletins and for other similar purposes not intended in the Citizens Radio Service.

13. Paragraph (c) of Section 19.61 [formerly paragraph (b)] has been substantially revised both from its present wording and the proposed wording. The Commission concurs with some of the comments that the proposals with respect to the shared, joint, or cooperative use of Class A stations on a non-profit, cost-sharing basis were too restrictive. However, upon reconsideration, the Commission is of the opinion that both the present wording of that provision and the first sentence of paragraph (e) as contained in the Notice of Proposed Rule Making are too broad and perhaps misleading. Several reports have been made to the Commission of licensees who have mistakenly interpreted the present provisions and turned over their equipment to other persons to operate, or allowed the equipment of other persons to be operated under their call sign in violation of Section 19.92. Therefore, the rules changes as adopted herein provide that except under certain clearly defined conditions a station licensed in the Citizens Radio Service may be used only for transmissions which relate to the business or personal affairs of the licensee.

14. The exception to the foregoing contained in subparagraph (1) of paragraph (c) permits two or more persons, jointly engaged in a business activity on a contractual basis, to use a citizens radio station licensed to one of them for transmission of communications of mutual interest relating to that activity. For an example, this would permit a licensee who is a general building contractor to provide a radiocommunication service to a subcontractor for communications relating to a mutual construction job. Subparagraph (2) is designed to permit a corporation to render a radiocommunication service to a parent or a subsidiary corporation. The third subparagraph permits the joint, shared, or cooperative use of a unit of a Class A station by two or more licensees for the purpose of communicating with other units of their respective Class A stations, but only on a non-profit, cost-sharing basis. This will allow several licensees to economize not only on cost, but on the use of frequencies by sharing the use of a base, mobile relay, repeater or other similar type station. It should be noted that the rule requires that the licensee of the shared unit make a showing that he has an independent need for that unit to fulfill his communications requirements. This appears necessary in order to prevent a licensee from setting up such a unit for the sole purpose of promoting his own business interest by offering tentative customers shared use of his station. In other words, any shared use of a Class A station must be incidental to the licensee's own use of that station.

15. Except in the limited situations set forth in subparagraphs (1) and (2) of Section 19.61(c), joint, shared, or cooperative use in any form of a Class B, C or D station is not permitted. The Commission concludes that because of the relatively low cost of equipment used in this service and the ease of obtaining an authorization in this service, provisions for joint, shared, or cooperative use of stations beyond that provided for in the amended rules is unnecessary.

16. Paragraph (d) prohibits a licensee from knowingly interfering with the communications of other stations which involve the immediate safety of life or the immediate protection of property. However, it cannot be emphasized too strongly that this provision applies only to incidental emergency communications, and that no protection can be afforded to stations which regularly transmit emergency communications as part of their normal business either in the Citizens Radio Service or in other services sharing these frequencies (see note to Section 19.12).

17. Paragraph (e) of Section 19.61 merely states that which is only good operating procedure; that is, that all communications, regardless of their nature, shall be restricted to the minimum practicable transmission time. The Commission believes that if the licensees restrict their communications to those for which the Citizens Radio Service was intended and as discussed in this Report and Order, they will naturally comply with the provisions of this paragraph.

18. Except for intercommunication between units of the same station and emergency or civil defense communications, paragraph (f) of Section 19.61 limits the transmission of any Class D station or any exchange of communications between two or more Class D stations to not more than five consecutive minutes followed by a two-minute silent period during which the licensee shall monitor the frequencies used and other stations provided an opportunity to use the frequencies.

19. Except for brief test transmissions and emergency or civil defense communications, all transmissions from a Class D station must be addressed to specific persons or stations within the direct groundwave coverage range, and any communication designed to elicit a response from a random or unknown station, such as by calling "CQ" is prohibited. The practice of using a "test" call for the purpose of inviting "DX" contacts with unknown stations will be considered to be a subterfuge in lieu of the general call "CQ" and in violation of the rules. The Commission believes that the limiting of stations to the local groundwave coverage area, as distinguished from communications which depend upon skywave reflection, is consistent with the basis and purpose of the Citizens Radio Service (as stated in Section 19.1) as designed to provide for private short-distance radiocommunications. In order to avoid receiving an Official Notice of Violation for an apparent violation of this rule, it is suggested that any licensee of a Class D station operating outside of his home radio inspection district, as represented by the first two digits of his call sign, give his geographical location in addition to his call sign when he makes his station identification as required by Section 19.62.

20. The remaining paragraphs of Section 19.61 are substantially unchanged and are believed to be self-explanatory.

21. Therefore, upon consideration of all the comments filed herein and of all other matters relevant to this proceeding, the Commission concludes that amendments outlined above and set forth in the Appendix attached hereto will materially serve the public interest, convenience, and necessity. The authority for such amendments is contained in Sections 4(i) and 303 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended.

22. In view of the foregoing, IT IS ORDERED, That effective March 15, 1960, Part 19 of the Commission's Rules IS AMENDED, as set forth in the attached Appendix.

APPENDIX

AMENDMENTS TO PART 19; CITIZENS RADIO SERVICE

1. Amend § 19.3 to read as follows:

§ 19.3 Policy governing the assignment of frequencies.

(a) The frequencies which may be assigned to Class A stations in the Citizens Radio Service, and the frequencies which are available for use by Class B, Class C, or Class D stations, are listed in Subpart C of this part. Each frequency available for assignment to, or use by, stations in this service is available on a shared basis only, and will not be assigned for the exclusive use of any one applicant; however, the use of a particuar frequency may be restricted to (or in) one or more specified geographical areas.

(b) In no case will more than one frequency be assigned to Class A stations for the use of a single applicant in any given area until it has been demonstrated conclusively to the Commission that the assignment of an additional frequency is essential to the operation proposed.

(c) All applicants and licensees in this service shall cooperate in the selection and use of the frequencies assigned or authorized, in order to minimize interference and thereby obtain the most effective use of the authorized facilities. Continuous or uninterrupted transmissions from a single station or between a number of intercommunicating stations is prohibited, except for communications involving the immediate safety of life, the immediate safety of property, or civil defense operations as provided in § 19.93.

2. Amend § 19.61 to read as follows:

§ 19.61 Permissible communications.

(a) The units of any Class A, Class B, or Class D stations licensed in the Citizens Radio Service are authorized primarily to communicate with other units of the same station; secondarily, units of all Class A, Class B, and Class D stations are authorized to intercommunicate with units of other stations in the Citizens Radio Service only when necessary for the exchange of substantive messages related to the business or personal activities of the individuals concerned. Communications with stations licensed or operated under the provisions of other parts of this chapter, or with United States Government or foreign stations, is prohibited except for communications relating to civil defense activities in accordance with the provisions of § 19.93.

(b) A citizens radio station may not be used for any purpose or in connection with any activity which is contrary to federal, state, or local law; or to carry communications for hire; or to carry program material of any kind for use either directly or indirectly in connection with broadcasting; or for the transmission of music; or for the transmission of any material intended solely for amusement or entertainment purposes; or for the direct transmission of any material to the public through public address systems or similar means.

(c) Except for stations which are used solely for the control of remote objects or devices by radio, or for the remote actuation of devices which are used solely as a means of attracting attention, no station in this service shall be used for the transmission of any communications or signal other than those concerning the business activities or personal affairs of the licensee, and no compensation or remuneration in any form may be accepted by the licensee from any other person for such use. Exception to the foregoing may be granted upon written request, but only upon a showing, satisfactory to the Commission, that the proposed use complies in full with the provisions of one of the subparagraphs of this paragraph and that the licensee has full access to and exclusive control over the radio equipment operated under the authority of the license held by him. In each case where compensation or remuneration is authorized to be received by the licensee, the applicable contract and records which reflect the cost of the service and its non-profit, cost-sharing basis shall be maintained by the licensee and held available at least one year for inspection by Commission representatives. The situations under which such additional authority may be granted are as follows:

(1) The licensee proposes to provide private radiocommunication facilities to some other person with whom he is engaged in a business activity on a contractual basis (other than as a partnership or association), for the sole purpose of transmitting communications of common interest concerning that activity. Any compensation or remuneration received by the licensee, if authorized, shall be governed by a contract entered into by the parties concerned, and shall not exceed the cost of providing the facilities divided on an equitable basis among all parties making use thereof.

(2) The licensee is a corporation and proposes to provide private radiocommunication facilities for the transmission of messages or signals by or on behalf of its parent corporation, another subsidiary of the same parent corporation, or its own subsidiary. Any remuneration or compensation received by the licensee for the use of the radiocommunication facilities shall be governed by a contract entered into by the parties concerned, and the total of such compensation shall not exceed the cost of providing the facilities.

(3) The licensee proposes the joint, shared, or cooperative use of a unit of a Class A station with one or more other licensees in this service for the purpose of communicating on a regular basis with other units of their respective Class A stations. All such use of the private radiocommunication facilities shall be pursuant to a written contract which shall provide that contributions to capital and operating expenses shall be made on a non-profit, cost-sharing basis, said costs to be divided on an equitable basis among all parties to the agreement. In addition, the licensee must show a separate and independent need for the particular unit proposed to be shared, to fulfill his own communications requirements.

(d) No person operating a station in this service shall knowingly interfere with or interrupt communications of other stations which involve the immediate safety of life or the immediate protection of property.

(e) All communications, regardless of their nature, shall be restricted to the minimum practicable transmission time.

(f) Except in the case of intercommunication between units of the same station, or in the case of communications involving the immediate safety of life, the immediate protection of property, or civil defense communications as provided in § 19.93, the transmission of any Class D station or any exchange of communications between two or more such stations shall not exceed five consecutive minutes and shall be followed by a silent period of at least two minutes in order to provide other stations an opportunity to use the frequency or frequencies involved; during this silent period the station(s) originally transmitting or communicating shall monitor all frequencies involved before any further transmissions are made.

(g) Except for brief test transmissions as provided in paragraph (j) of this section, all transmissions from a Class D station licensed in this service shall be addressed to specific persons or stations within the direct groundwave coverage range. Any communication which depends primarily upon skywave reflection or any communication or transmission designed to elicit a response from random or unknown stations (such as by use of the general call "CQ" or by some similar procedure) is prohibited except in cases of emergency involving the health or safety of individuals, the protection of property, or civil defense operation as provided in § 19.93.

(h) Except for brief test transmissions as provided in paragraph (j) of this section, a citizens radio station which is used for the purpose of communication shall not emit a carrier wave except when actual communications are being transmitted.

(i) Except as provided in paragraph (j) of this section, a citizens radio station which is used to control remote objects or devices by means of radio, or to remotely actuate devices which are used as a means of attracting attention, shall not be operated in a manner which involves the radiation of energy except when actual control signals are being transmitted.

(j) A citizens radio station may transmit a brief test signal, either with or without modulation as appropriate, when necessary for tests or adjustments of the station equipment. In addition, a citizens radio station may transmit a continuous carrier, without being simultaneously modulated by any form of communication or signal, while such station is actually being used to control model aircraft in flight by means of interrupted tone modulation of its carrier.

(k) The licensee of any station in this service may, during a period of emergency in which normal communication facilities are disrupted or inadequate as a result of hurricane, flood, earthquake, enemy action, or similar disaster, utilize such station for emergency communications without regard to the provisions of paragraphs (a), (c), (d), (f), and (g) of this section, subject to the following conditions:

(1) As soon as possible after the beginning of such emergency use, notice shall be sent to the Commission in Washington, D. C., and to the Engineer in Charge of the Radio District in which the station is located, stating the nature of the emergency and the use to which the station is being put;

(2) The emergency use of the station shall be discontinued as soon as substantially normal communication facilities are again available, and the Commission in Washington, D. C., and the Engineer in Charge, shall be notified immediately when such special use of the station is terminated; and

(3) The Commission may at any time order discontinuance of such special use of the authorized facilities.
